8th August 1946] [Mr. President]

him. So, in spite of my best efforts to control the speeches, I have not been able to do so. I also find that most of the members who took a long time over the speeches did not really abuse the privilege that was given to them. That time was really necessary to enable them to discharge their duties properly. I have, therefore, come to the conclusion that the time allotted to this House for general discussion of the budget is hardly sufficient and this opinion of mine is reinforced if I look at what took place in the other House where members had to sit extra hours without getting any chance of getting extra payment as their labour would have it. I therefore think that when next time days will be fixed for this all important question of budget discussion, this aspect of the matter will be taken into consideration, and at least 4 days will be allotted to this House. If I may give a recommendation to the other House also, I will certainly recommend two more days to be given to the other House. With these remarks I close the proceedings.

"It is very likely that this House will have to meet some time in the first week of September. Some Bills are coming up for discussion, though I am not able to give the exact date now. I am, therefore, adjourning this House sine die. Due notice of the date in September will be given to hon. Members."
